

Lonnie Hutchinson

Acknowledging and informed by the rich cultural resources of her Polynesian heritage (Ngāi Tahu, Ngāti Kuri ki Ngāi Tahu, Ngāti Hamoa), Lonnie Hutchinson is a multi media and installation artist who exhibits regularly in New Zealand and Australia. Lonnie has taught Art and Art History and Theory, in various Colleges and Universities in New Zealand and Australia and has had management roles for various arts organisations.

In 2000 Hutchinson was the first woman recipient of the Macmillan Brown Centre for Pacific Studies residency at the University of Canterbury, and was also a recipient of the first International Indigenous Art residency at the Banff Art Centre, in Alberta, Canada in 2003. Public commissions include Pikihuia i te ao, i te pō, and Kahu Matarau 2 large scale integrations into the exterior of the Christchurch Justice and Emergency Services Precinct, 2017. 'Aroha Atu, Aroha Mai, a neon art work in Manukau City, 2015. 'Te Waharoa ki te ao Mārama', (A freestanding Corten steel sculpture) Hamilton Lake, 2013. 'Honoa ki te Hono Tawhiti' 12 permanent wall works for the re-build of the Auckland Art Gallery 2011.

Lonnie's work can be found in The Auckland Art Gallery Toi o Tamaki, The Christchurch Art Gallery Te Puna O Waiwhetu, the Hocken Library Dunedin, the Queensland Art Gallery, the National Gallery of Australia, The Chartwell Collection and in private collections throughout New Zealand and abroad.
